

Cleveland Clinic Selects peerVue Technology & Development Partnership

BURLINGTON, VT (November, 2006) — peerVue, LLC, provider of niche healthcare software solutions announced today that it has been chosen by Cleveland Clinic, Cleveland Ohio, as the Clinic's provider of Digital Teaching File and Content Management Solutions.

peerVue's caseVue solution will be implemented with tight integration to the Clinic's Siemens PACS to enable rapid creation of teaching files and interesting cases directly from the PACS workstation without interruption to the Radiologists' workflow.

Cleveland Clinic will use the peerVue technology to facilitate medical training and research and will collaborate with peerVue to further expand the peerVue solutions aimed at tight integration to the RSNA MIRC project and the support two important but rarely supported IHE integration profiles, IHE Key Image Notes, and IHE Teaching Files profile.

"We believe that new information technologies applied to teaching files and content management are important to maintain high-quality training and research," said David Piraino, M.D., Section Head of the Computers in Radiology Department of the Cleveland Clinic.

"It is a tremendous opportunity to be the Cleveland Clinic's chosen provider for research and teaching file solutions", said Kyle Lawton, peerVue CEO, "the opportunity to work with the Cleveland Clinic team affords peerVue a significant strategic advantage, which we are poised to capitalize on!"
